Support here for jet ski restrictions

New state law gives towns option to petition for ban or other limits

By ALISON ALOISIO

In the wake of the state Legislature's passage of a law restricting the use of jet skis on Maine's remote lakes, a local lakes association is expected to discuss whether to petition for restrictions on Bethel-area lakes.

The law, passed late in the last Legislative session, bans the machines on 245 waters in Maine's unorganized territories -- and sets up a procedure so that municipalities can petition the state for restrictions on local lakes and ponds.

A town or towns on a body of water would have to agree on specific restrictions before going to the state fish and wildlife commissioner.

Nancy Willard, who lives on Lake

Christopher in Bryant Pond, is the president of the Community Lakes Association. The option of pursuing restrictions, she said, will be discussed at the association's annual meeting in July.

"We're definitely going to look into that," she said. "I think there would be an awful lot of people for it."

Willard has seen jet skis come and go over the course of recent summers on her lake. Most of them, she said, are brought in by people renting cottages on the lake.

The noise generated by the machines, she said, echoes off the nearby mountains. "It multiplies the sound," said Willard.

A popular pastime of jet skiers is

FEMA will remap Newry floodplain

But natural changes and the hand of man keep outer limits murky

By ALISON ALOISIO

No one planning to build a home on a riverbank wants to find out the hard way how high the water will rise during a flood.

But figuring that out ahead of time -- with only sketchy maps of river floodplains available -- is not exactly easy, either.

Now, help may be on the way, at least for prospective builders in Newry. The Federal Emergency Management Agency recently approved a more precise mapping of the Sunday River's floodplain.

Once in a hundred years

Town ordinance requires that the lowest floor of any new riverbank home be built at least a foot above the level of a 100-year flood -- one that occurs statistically only once in a hundred years.

For small rivers, FEMA's current floodplain maps show generally where that level is. But they do not show actual elevations.

"The maps are not that good," says Greg Stewart, an engineer with the U.S. Geological Survey.

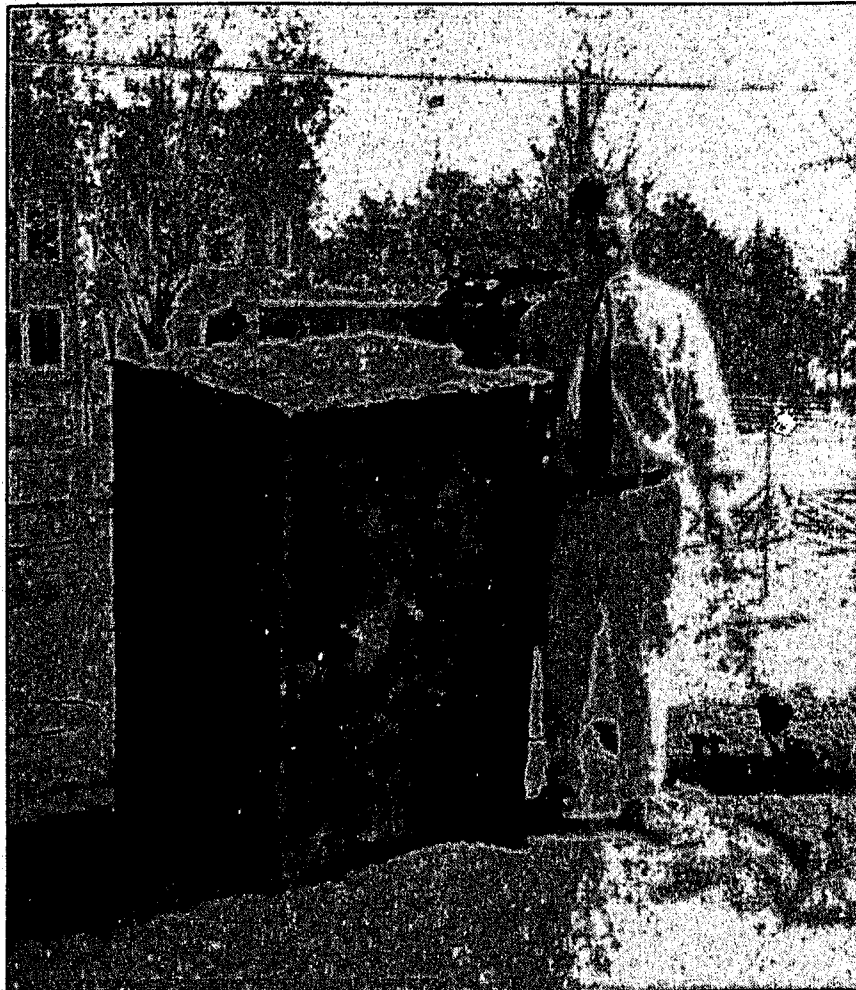

The maps were produced in the 1970s "from the office, with no historic data," he said. "They were 99 percent an engineer's judgment -- using topographical maps and drawing a line."

An example of the problems that can be created by the incomplete maps occurred last month, when a couple planning to build a home near the Sunday River came to the Newry Planning Board. The applicants and the board were faced with the dilemma of trying to figure out where it was safe to build.

Find some long-time residents who can remember where the river went in big floods of past years, the board told the applicants. And, suggested the planners, hire a surveyor

THIS OLD SAFE was turned up Tuesday by an excavator digging a foundation hole for the Bethel Inn addition. The safe is believed to have come from the Bethel House, which formerly stood on the site. Estimated to weigh more than a ton, the safe was found six to eight feet below ground. The Bethel House burned in 1911, and the Bethel Inn was built in its place in 1913. Inn manager Bill White, shown here with the safe, planned to have a locksmith cut the back off it to see what is inside. Stay tuned, Geraldo.

Funding uncertainty leads to budget cutbacks

Bethel boards want reserve available to cover treatment plant work

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Faced with continuing uncertainty over federal funding for the upgrade project at the town's wastewater treatment plant, the Bethel Board of Selectmen and Budget Committee have opted to eliminate $365,000 from the Capital Improvement Program they will recommend to voters at this year's annual Town Meeting.

The CIP cut drops the overall municipal budget recommended for FY 1999 to $1,426,441, which is $313,378, or 18.5 percent, less than the comparable figure for FY'98. (The municipal budget figure does not include school or county levies.)

The CIP is a multi-year program for anticipating the impact of major capital expenses facing the town. It is typically used for big-ticket items such as vehicles, major equipment, roads and physical plant.

By planning ahead and spreading such expenses over a number of years, town officials are able to reduce year-to-year fluctuations in the property tax rate.

For FY'98 the town allocated

$563,344 (including debt service) for capital improvements.

The initial FY'99 budget envisioned spending or setting aside $458,538 for such expenses.

But with state officials still unwilling (due to the failure of Bethel Station to produce new jobs) to

No hats in the ring for Bethel selectman or school director

By MICHAEL DANIELS

It appears Bethel voters will have a wide variety of candidates to select from when they cast their ballots for selectmen and school directors this year.

If fact, they can write in any names they like -- and will have to do just that, because it doesn't look like there will be any names to simply check off on the printed ballot.

Tomorrow, Friday, is the deadline for filing to run for town office, but as of Wednesday afternoon no one had turned in papers with the two-dozen signatures required for candidates who want to appear on the ballot.

In fact, only one set of papers had even been taken out, and those were for an anonymous candidate, according to Town Clerk Christen Mason.

There are two openings on the Board of Selectmen this year, both for three-year terms.

Both incumbents, John Thurston and Ruth Grover, say they do not plan on serving another term.

"Nine years is enough," said Thurston, a veteran of three terms.

Grover, who is completing her first term, declined to comment on her decision not to seek reelection.

The two terms on the SAD44 Board of Directors are also for three years, and, again, the incumbents, John Bayerlein and Linda Howe, have not taken out papers for new terms.

There are also two three-year terms open on the Board of Assessors, but in this case there will be two candidates on the ballot, incumbent Stan Howe and newcomer David Luxton, who is running for the seat being vacated by Arthur Gilbert.

Grover's plan old home's resurrection

After holding funeral for original, 1820s, building

By ALISON ALOISIO

The Grover family of Mason Township held a funeral a couple of weeks ago. Everyone had a wonderful time.

The 70 people who attended did not come to bury a relative -- they came to say goodbye to Rupert and Ina Grover's house.

The house was built in the early 1800s, probably by early settler Ashley Paine. It's one of only two 1800s-vintage homes left in Mason.

The home has been in the Grover family since the first part of this century. Rupert Grover and his 10 siblings were all born and grew up there.

And Rupert and Ina have lived there off and on for the better part of 50 years, raising four children. Those children have had children, some of whom have also had children. Family gatherings have been a regular event at the old house.

But about a year ago, Rupert and Ina decided they would tear down the house and build a new one in its place.

It's a decision that some might see as unusual, coming from the senior generation of a family.

'It was a social affair. It doesn't take much to get the family together.'

INA GROVER
on the funeral
held for her house

But the Grovers are practical people. It had become apparent over the past few years that the old house needed major structural work. By the time such work could be done, said Ina, the house would have to pretty much be rebuilt anyway.

"It seemed simpler to just start at the bottom and come up," she said.

And a new house would naturally lend itself to all kinds of improvements.

The old house, for instance, has a dirt basement. A new home would have a modern basement, better for storage and other basement activities, Ina said.

Then there's the large stone fireplace in the living room of the old house. "It lets all the heat up the chimney," she said.

So with all that in mind, the decision was made to build a new house -- one that would have a strong resemblance to the old one -- on the same site.

Rupert and Ina will live in it as long as they are able. Eventually, it will pass to the next generation.

The new house will be ready late in the summer. Until then, the Grovers will live with a nearby son. They'll still be able to cultivate their large gardens, which they've had for years.

A social affair

The April 11 funeral, said Ina,

LIVING IN HANOVER

To the Editor:

Recently, we spoke with our son regarding the proposed Mead/Fulghum chipping mill which will be located adjacent to Howard Pond Road. Jon loves Hanover, and he was very concerned that perhaps a way of life would change forever. While going through my files, I came across his college application essay written in 1991 when he was a senior at Rumford High. I would like to share some excerpts from that essay.

"Two factors which have greatly influenced my personal development are the town in which I live and the sports in which I have participated."

"Hanover is a small town of approximately 200 located in the foothills of western Maine. There are only two primary roads in the town. Route 2, which spans the entire distance of Hanover along the Androscoggin River, and Howard Pond Road, which branches off Route 2 at the Hanover Store, and runs its course uphill one mile to Howard Pond. Twelve miles to the east lies Rumford, a mill town of about 10,000, where most of Hanover's residents are employed."

"Except for the town's small size and the beautiful, large New England homes, there appears to be nothing very special about Hanover. It is special to me, however, not only because it has been my home for the past 12 years, but because living there has had a significant impact upon my upbringing and the way I think and act."

"Many of the warmest memories I hold from my childhood could not have taken place had I lived someplace else. The little things are the memories I cherish most, like playing football in Ferguson's field until dark; building tree houses in the woods, and dams along the brook; sledding, skating, and skiing in the winter; swimming, fishing, and hiking in the summer. These are just a few of the activities I enjoyed as a child in Hanover."

"Living in Hanover has helped me value life in a small New England Village."

Our way of life in Hanover could be forever changed with the building of this chipping mill. There will be an increase in noise and disturbance of the peace and quiet we all enjoy. The sound of babbling brooks will be replaced with that of round-the-clock truck traffic. We are concerned that the lifestyle our children enjoyed growing up in Hanover may not be the same for future generations.

Before we accept a chipping plant in our town, there are many points to consider too numerous to list. One thing is certain, the plant will forever change the rural residential nature of our beautiful town.

REMEMBERING GWENDOLIN HOLT

To the Editor:

My grandmother, Edith Kimball Howe, always had a high opinion of Ernest and Gwendolin Holt. She used to talk frequently about the Holts (one always considered them as a unit, since they were such a close couple) and I believe she was the one who first introduced them to me when I was a teenager in the 1950s. It must have been when Gwendolin was home for the summer from teaching in Wyoming. I remember being very impressed with their friendliness and knowledge of the history of the area.

When my grandmother was leading the effort to save the Middle Intervale Meeting House from falling into ruin in the 1960s, it was the Holts who were among the first to come to the rescue of this remarkable building. I recall how pleased she was with the $200 they contributed toward the cause. That was quite a gift in those days. They assured her that more would come her way if it was needed. Because they thought so much of my grandmother, they were among her strongest supporters in saving Bethel's oldest surviving religious structure.

Ernest died in April 1992 and Gwendolin has now followed him six years later at the age of 98. She was one of those people who should be remembered for dedicated and conscientious service in the early days of the Bethel Historical Society. She served as treasurer from 1972 until 1974 when she resigned as a result of a disagreement as to who should handle funds relating to the restoration of the Dr. Moses Mason House.

When I came to serve as the first administrator of the society in May 1974, I soon heard from Ernest and Gwendolin of the reason for Gwendolin's resignation. She firmly told me that because of this, she would never set foot in the Dr. Mason House. I saw that as a challenge and by careful coaxing and frequently reminding her that I had nothing to do with the reason for her resignation, did manage to get her to tour the house. After that Ernest became a life member, but she never would rejoin. She did make several important donations to the collection and always told me how much she enjoyed reading the society's quarterly, but one did not cross her easily and grudges were strongly held in a number of cases, including this one.

My many visits to the Holts were always educational. Ernest did most of the talking, but Gwendolin did not hesitate to remind him of some details he should bring to my attention. These were invariably some of the best "tidbits" of the local past and I will always be grateful for her interest and encouragement through the years.

NO BEER IS WORTH THAT

To the Editor:

On April 14, I was home burning brush from January's ice storm. Unable to leave, I had called my girlfriend and asked her to pick up something for supper and a couple of beers. She had stopped at the Bethel Foodliner. Having no idea as to the price of beer and in a hurry, she shopped and came home. I was charged $7.50 for three beers plus tax and deposit.

Thinking there was a mistake, I went to the store and was told the high price is to discourage single-beer purchases. Granted, there was a 4-by-6 inch sign on the cooler -- similar to a regular sale sign and not very noticeable. And no one at the cash register bothered to inform her of the store policy.

No beer is worth $2.50 a bottle. My mistake this time. I've always felt comfortable buying in a grocery store for best prices. But maybe it's time to go back to convenience stores. They only charge $1.20 for the same single beer.

Augusta Roll Call Report

By STEVEN STYCOS

Each month while the Maine legislature is in session, the Augusta Roll Call Report will detail the key votes of our area's legislators during the previous month.

The Roll Call Report is intended to help voters decide whether how well their elected representatives are representing the people who elected them. The Citizen urges its readers to clip and save these reports and refer to them later this year when candidates for state representative and state senator are seeking votes.

The Roll Call Report is researched and written by investigative reporter Steven Stycos using official House of Representatives and Senate documents.

In 1997, private interests paid lobbyists $3.85 million to influence legislation in Augusta, according to the Maine Commission on Governmental Ethics and Election Practices. That's almost double the $1.98 million Maine paid its 186 legislators last year.

Former Oxford County State Senator Severin Beliveau, for example, received $78,867 from thirteen different organizations, including $3,850 from Ski Maine and $13,428 from the Tobacco Institute. Other lobbyists working for local interests were Karen Brown-Mohr who received $9,400 to lobby for Mead Corporation, Stephen Clarkin who received $10,625 from International Paper and Gregory Sample who was paid $5,603 by the Passamaquoddy Tribe.

The leading lobbying spenders in 1997 were utilities, tobacco companies and the Bath Iron Works.

Philip Morris' lobbyists received $129,801 last year to help defeat several tobacco control bills, but they were unsuccessful in preventing a doubling of the cigarette tax. And while the Legislature pondered a deregulation bill certain to determine its future profits, Central Maine Power paid lobbyists $209,240 to protect its interests. Finally, Bath Iron Works, owned by General Dynamics, spent $141,984 and received a $60 million tax break from the Legislature.

Legislation to give the Passamaquoddy and Penobscot tribes control over land use regulations on their property died when a six-member conference committee could not reach agreement on a compromise bill. The bill had passed the House, but was defeated in the Senate.

The bill's sponsor, House Judiciary Committee Chairman Richard Thompson (D-Naples), expressed frustration at opposition to the bill. "The issue is whether the [Indian Land Claims] settlement act entitles tribes to be like towns," he says. Towns are exempt from the regulations of the Land Use Regulation Commission (LURC), Thompson explains, because they have planning boards to set land use regulations within limits established by state law. His legislation, Thompson states, would merely allow the tribes to establish similar procedures for tribal lands of at least 500 acres.

"It doesn't do as much as people are saying," concludes Thompson.

Locally, State Senators Richard Bennett (R-Oxford), Norman Ferguson (R-Oxford), and John Benoit (R-Franklin) voted against the bill. In the House, State Representatives Alvin Barth (R-Bethel) and Tom Winsor (R-Norway) opposed the bill, but State Representative Robert Cameron (R-Rumford) voted for it.

Ferguson's last-minute attempt to allow the Passamaquoddy Tribe exclusive rights to run a high-stakes beano game at Scarborough Downs, and thereby eliminate the tribe's interest in Albany Township, received only three votes on the Senate floor.

Ferguson, who supported major gambling bills this year (see Senate vote 5), says he offered the amendment on the spur of the moment at the request of State Representatives Alvin Barth (R-Bethel) and George Kerr (D-Old Orchard Beach).

The amendment quickly ran into opposition from Scarborough Sen. Peggy Pendelton. Although she supports legislation to permit electronic slot machines at the harness track, she opposed Ferguson's amendment because it had not had a public hearing.

Both Senators Benoit and Bennett also voted against Ferguson's amendment.

As he was last year, Bennett is upset that the Legislature passed a budget without Republican support. The Appropriations Committee member says an agreement was almost reached, but "When the House leadership got involved, any chance of compromise vanished."

Eliminating the snack tax, or somehow reducing the sales tax (such as exempting new car purchases) and reducing the number of new state jobs in the budget would have won Republican support, Bennett says.

What follows are some of the major roll call votes taken during March and April. The attendance percentages are based on all 1998 roll call votes (237 roll calls in the Senate and 256 in the House).

HOUSE

1. HOMESTEAD TAX EXEMPTION: March 12 vote on the tax cut plan backed by the Democrats and Gov. Angus King. Republicans supported the bill's provision to increase the state income tax personal exemption to $2,750, but opposed the $47 million homestead exemption. Reimbursing towns for the tax on $7,500 of every home's value will reduce property taxes, Democrats say. But Republicans, who proposed cutting the income or sales tax instead, say there is no guarantee that towns will reduce taxes or that the program will continue when the economy dips and tax revenues drop. The bill passed 76-65.

2. SUPPLEMENTAL BUDGET: March 30 vote on LD 1950, the supplemental budget backed by Democrats and Gov. King. The plan to spend about $300 million in unexpected tax revenues was praised for providing $77 million in tax cuts, $75 million for local schools and other money for a variety of programs, but Republicans wanted more money for tax cuts and fewer new state jobs. The budget passed 77-66.

3. COLA FOR WORKERS COMP: March 27 vote on LD 1192, sponsored by Rep. Roland Samson (D-Jay), to give injured workers receiving compensation for six or more years an annual cost of living allowance. Supporters say those who are most severely injured need their benefits updated to survive, but opponents worry the change will increase insurance rates and discourage businesses from locating in Maine. The bill passed 67-66. Later the bill was vetoed by Gov. King and the House was not able to get the 2/3 vote for a veto override.

4. LIMIT MANDATORY OVERTIME: March 30 vote on LD 2116, sponsored by Sen. John Cleveland (D-Androscoggin), to prohibit employers from forcing workers to work more than 96 hours of overtime in three consecutive weeks. Cleveland says the bill guarantees workers have time for their personal lives, but opponents say government should not interfere with a company's work schedules. The bill passed 76-68.

5. SLOT MACHINES AT RACE TRACKS: March 30 vote on LD 1676, to permit the installation of video slot machines at harness racing tracks and off-track betting parlors. Supporters said the bill would help horse breeders by luring people back to the racetracks, but opponents worry about the problems that go with expansion of gambling. The bill passed 84-61.

6. TOUGH FORESTRY BILL: March 23 vote on LD 1766, sponsored by Rep. David Shiah (D-Bowdoinham), to limit annual clearcutting to one quarter percent of a large landowner's property, reduce the maximum clearcut from 250 to 75 acres and establish a board to audit forest conditions. Environmentalists say the bill is necessary to sustain wood related jobs and preserve the Maine woods, but industry says it's a misguided regulation of private property. The bill was defeated 39-100.

7. LIMIT JET SKIS: April 2 vote on LD 1730 to regulate jet skis. The bill prohibits the buzzing personal water craft from 245 of Maine's most remote ponds and permits residents at other ponds to petition the commissioner of the Department of Inland Fisheries and Wildlife to restrict their use on other bodies of water. Supporters of the bill say jet skis are obnoxiously loud and disrupt fish and wildlife, but opponents say everyone should be able to enjoy Maine's ponds as they wish. The bill passed 87-53.

8. NO NEW BOATHOUSES: April 2 vote on LD 1918, sponsored by Rep. Sharon Libby Jones (D-Greenville), to specify that shoreline zoning law prohibits construction of boat houses for personal use on the water. Supporters of the bill say some towns have permitted boathouses which mar the landscape, but opponents object to the regulation of private property. The bill passed 97-36.

9. CUT SALES TAX: March 18 motion to direct the Taxation Committee to send LD 493, sponsored by Sen. James Libby (R-York), to the full Senate. The bill cuts the sales tax from 6 percent to 5 percent. Reducing the sales tax is a permanent tax cut, Republicans say, but Democrats preferred the homestead property tax exemption and worried that revenues are not consistently high enough to cut the sales tax. The motion, which required a 2/3 vote to pass, failed 15-15.

MDOT to hold pipeline hearing

AUGUSTA--The Maine Department of Transportation has scheduled a public hearing for May 5 on a "road cut" permit application from the Portland Natural Gas Transmission System. The permit would clear the way for PNGTS to open the East Bethel Road to install the proposed natural gas pipeline spur running between Albany and Jay. The pipeline has already been approved by the Federal Energy Regulation Commission and the Bethel Planning Board, but it is still opposed by a number of residents of the area through which it will travel -- especially along the East Bethel Road. At Monday's meeting of the Bethel Board of Selectmen, pipeline opponent Wally Hannigan said she hoped for support from the town at the hearing. The selectmen said they felt the matter was largely out of the town's hands, but Town Manager Phil Tarr agreed to help the opponents review the relevant DOT regulations so they could make an effective case at the hearing. The hearing is open to the public and will be held at Telstar High School, beginning at 6:30 p.m.

School budget hearing is Wednesday

BETHEL--A public hearing on SAD44's FY'99 budget is scheduled for Wednesday, April 29 at 7 p.m. in the Telstar High School Library. If the budget is approved in the May 12 district-wide referendum vote, the average increase in the local assessment would be 2.96 percent. The total budget is $7,245,273.

Transportation grant approved

BETHEL--The Maine State Planning Office has approved a $16,000 transportation grant to the towns of Bethel and Newry. The money -- along with a $4,000 local match to be provided by the Bethel Area Chamber of Commerce and Sunday River Ski Resort -- will be used to study transportation patterns between Bethel Village and Sunday River, and to suggest improvements in the existing infrastructure. According to the grant application, which was prepared by the Androscoggin Valley Council of Governments, possible improvement might include some form of transit system to be used by workers at the ski resort and by visitors arriving without automobiles. The study could be begun as early as June, according to Town Manager Phil Tarr, and completed by the fall.

Panel opposes east-west highway

DIXFIELD--The Route 2 Corridor Committee voted 5-0 Tuesday to oppose a billion-dollar east-west highway across Maine. Instead, committee members said they favor using the funding for upgrading Route 2. The committee represents 11 communities between New Sharon and Gilead. The state Legislature has approved $600,000 for a study of the economic impact the four-lane, limited access highway would have on the state. Supporters of the project say it is crucial to future economic development.

Unemployment falls in February

AUGUSTA--The unemployment rate in the Rumford area fell from 6.9 in February 1997 to 6.5 the same month this year, according to the state Department of Labor. The Oxford County rate in the same period dropped from 7.2 percent to 6.9 percent. The state unemployment rate also declined over the past year, from 5.4 percent in February 1997 to the current 4.5 percent. The adjusted national rate for February 1998 was 4.6 percent.

Town to lease chipper

WEST PARIS--Selectmen voted last week to authorize road commissioner Bill Keach to enter into a lease-purchase agreement with Metco Machine of Westbrook for a chipper to be used during the final phase of the ice storm cleanup. Selectmen considered purchasing the machine outright with some of the $40,000 reimbursement pledged by the federal and state emergency management agencies, but chairman Howard Gurney suggested going with the monthly lease arrangement. It made more sense, he said, to see how much the town would use the chipper after the cleanup before deciding whether to buy it.

Eagles on Umbagog

ERROL--A pair of bald eagles are nesting on a traditional nesting tree on Lake Umbagog. The pair was first spotted on March 28. They are incubating eggs, which should hatch in about three weeks. The eagles had a "failed nest" last year, in which no chicks were hatched.

WMNF gets cleanup money

GORHAM, N.H.--The U.S. Forest Service will receive $500,000 to clean up damage from the ice storm in the White Mountain National Forest. The figure is one-third of the funds requested, but USFS said it is pleased with the award. The money will be used to open up trails and restore badly eroded roads. More than half the funds have been allocated to the recreation budget.

Second golf course planned

CARRABASSETT VALLEY--Carrabassett Valley and Sugarloaf/USA officials met last week to review research into a second golf course in town. The current Sugarloaf course has been voted the No. 1 public course in Maine for the past decade. Its popularity and growth in the sport prompted the town to look into adding another course. Selectmen said they believe residents will support the project. The course would be leased, operated and maintained by the American Skiing Company. Taxpayers, the selectmen said, are pleased with the results of the current course, which the municipality built and leases to the resort. It provided a missing draw for the area in the summertime, and is so busy the board thought another one might be warranted. Two sites are currently under consideration. The officials are optimistic they could have a proposal for a town vote as soon as July. The estimated cost of the course is $5 million.

May is mailbox fixup time

PORTLAND--Now that the weather is getting warmer and the ground has had time to thaw, it is a good time for rural postal patrons to check the condition of their mailboxes. The U.S. Postal Service provides the following guidelines to protect boxes and make service faster and safer: The rural box and post should be located in a new box, or if the need arises to move the old box. A box that is of adequate size for the amount of mail received should be used. The box number should be visible to the carrier as he approaches the box. Mailboxes should have doors and flags that work properly. Doors should have handles and there should be no jagged edges on doors or boxes. The area around the mailbox must be kept clear of trash cans, vehicles, pets, bushes, etc. that will prevent the carrier from being able to reach the box or deliver safely. The mailbox and surrounding area should be clear of bee nests and paper route boxes should not extend out further than the mailbox. In instances where multiple boxes are located side by side, the front of boxes should line up evenly. To ensure safety, postal customers are asked to wait to collect their mail until after the carrier has placed the mail in box and pulled away from the area. Anyone with questions about mailboxes or mail delivery should phone the local post office.

Fewer cottontails on the bunny trail

The New England cottontail rabbit is becoming a rare sight -- in the past three decades it has lost about 80 percent of its habitat, according to the Maine Department of Inland Fisheries and Wildlife. The populations that are left could be easily wiped out by disease, lack of genetic diversity, or development influences. The animal is smaller and rounder than the eastern cottontail rabbit, and has a black patch between its ears. IFW is applying for grant money to study the rabbit population. The study would help determine if the cottontail, which is currently listed as a species of special concern in Maine, should be considered threatened or endangered.

From the Bethel Police log:

Frogs draw an audience

At 9:35 p.m. on April 17, police received a report of a suspicious vehicle on Skillins Road. On arrival the vehicle turned its headlights on and left. The officer stopped the vehicle. The driver said he and his wife were listening to the frogs.

Saturday, April 18

At 6:10 a.m., while on patrol, police checked an area business. A clerk asked if the officer would try to wake a man asleep on a bench in the business. When the officer shook the subject, he woke up. The man said he had tried to find a room in a local hotel but had been unsuccessful. The officer asked him where he lived, and he said he lived in Albany. When asked why he didn't just go home, the man did not give a clear answer. He was told he had to leave, and he did so without incident.

Monday, April 20

At 5:36 p.m. while westbound on Bridge Street, police observed a van traveling east at a high rate of speed. The van was clocked at 55 miles per hour. The officer stopped the vehicle and found the plates belonged on the operator's wife's vehicle. Darrell J. MacFarlane, 32, of Holden was issued a summons for improper plates and for operating an unregistered motor vehicle, as well as for speeding and failure to produce evidence of insurance.

Tuesday, April 21

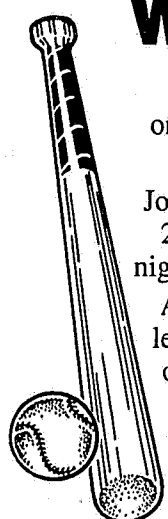

At 10 a.m. a caller reported a delivery truck driver had told him that when he stopped at a local restaurant he saw three juveniles flee from the loading dock area toward Gould Academy. A check of the area showed signs the juveniles had been smoking behind the building.

This report highlights points of interest from the Bethel Police Department log, but does not include all reports of police activity. To reach the Bethel Police Department, call 911 in emergency situations, 824-3437 in non-emergencies. An answering machine takes calls when an officer is not in the office.

release $200,000 the town had planned to use as part of the treatment plant work, the selectmen and Budget Committee members opted to recommend only a minimal CIP budget for the coming year.

That would leave enough money in reserve to cover the treatment-plant work -- even should a worse-case scenario eventually play out in August.

Left in the proposed CIP for FY'99 was $92,379, enough to pay for road improvements ($50,000), replacement of a police cruiser ($27,379), and repair of the Cole Block roof ($15,000).

Taken out of the initial CIP budget was $125,659 for rebuilding Broad Street, $63,300 for other road improvements, $60,000 for a sidewalk blower and attachments, $50,000 to be put aside toward the eventual resolution of the Fire Department's space problems, $30,000 for sidewalk improvements, and $27,550 for Fire Department equipment.

Town officials had hoped that a meeting Wednesday afternoon in August would resolve the treatment plant financing problem and make it possible to restore some of the CIP wake jumping -- circling around to generate waves from the craft's wake, then jumping them. When the jet ski comes out of the water, its impeller can create a loud whine, in addition to the regular engine noise.

Willard also said that when she attended a lakeside wedding last summer, it was difficult to hear the minister performing the ceremony because of a jet ski going back and forth.

She has not noticed an increase in the number of the craft on the lake in recent years. But as the summers go by, Willard said, the cumulative effect increases some lake residents' irritation level.

Besides the noise, she worries about jet skiers coming too close to swimmers and nesting loons.

The jet skis have a shallower draft than traditional watercraft, and can get closer to shore.

Willard said she does not generally have a problem with motorboats, because the sound is not as intrusive and they do not come as close to shore.

She does not have specific jet ski restrictions in mind to propose to association members this summer, she said. As an example, though, she offered the idea of banning jet skis that register over a certain decibel level.

More recent models make less noise, she said.

Any municipal petitions must go to IFW by Nov. 1, in order to go before the Legislature next year. Petitions will also be accepted until Nov. 1 of 1999 for consideration in the second year of the legislative session.

The threat to wildlife from jet skiers is also a worry to Ellie Andrews, who lives on North Pond. "I have a concern because of the loons, the ducks and the canoes," she said.

The jet skis "have a heck of a wake, and speed," she said, making it difficult for canoes and kayaks to get out of the way -- and keep from being capsized.

She said she can live with the few jet skis that currently use the pond,

"but if we get a lot more, it would definitely be a problem."

Campowners wrote legislators

During the Legislature's consideration of the jet ski legislation, Willard appealed to area campowners and association members to write state representatives about the issue.

That, said Willard, brought a considerable response.

'I can definitely understand where people are coming from on that -- (jet skis) are noisy.'

JIM DEARDEN
Albany jet ski owner,
on objections to the craft

One area cottage owner wrote of his concerns about the "dangerous and reckless operation" of jet skis, the apparent declining water quality, and level of erosion in and around area lakes.

He said that for some years he has wanted to purchase land adjacent to his current property, but when the opportunity to do that came along last fall, he declined it. "A key factor was our perception that Maine lakefront property values are likely to be increasingly threatened by the lack of effective state control of lake usage. A few seem to be spoiling the vacations of many," he wrote.

Another letter-writer said jet skiers commonly play tag or chase the loons to make them dive.

From the users' side

On the other side of the issue, jet ski dealers have argued that banning the watercraft is discriminatory -- it punishes the many for the actions of only a few, they said.

They also said bans could badly hurt what they say is a promising industry in the state.

Locally, jet ski owner Jim Dearden of Albany says he can understand the negative feelings about the watercraft.

"I can definitely understand where people are coming from on that -- (the jet skis) are noisy," he said.

Dearden said he has not put his own 1985 craft on the water at Songo Pond because of his concern about pond residents' reaction.

He said he would be open to "reasonable restrictions" on noise, and believes there is probably a way to adapt older jet skis like his to lessen the sound.

As for careless use of the craft, Dearden said there are also careless motorboat operators -- although, he said, the jet skis may attract "more aggressive" types of users.

He also said, however, that newer model jet skis, such as those carrying more than one person, are designed more for family use. And of jet skis in general, he said, "they are pleasure craft for a lot of people."

was the idea of some of her grandchildren, who wanted a way to remember the house.

It was hardly a somber occasion. The grandchildren and great-grandchildren played, swung on the swing hanging from a large oak tree in the front yard, and rowed around a nearby duck pond in a boat.

"It doesn't take much to get the family together," said Ina.

This past weekend, many of the family members gathered again. This time they came to dismantle the house.

They pulled out windows, took out steel in the roof and carried furniture into the barn to store until the new house is built. Rupert and Ina pitched in, too.

Didn't they feel a twinge, seeing the old place coming apart?

No, said Rupert. He's just looking forward to the new house.

Said Ina, "It will just be a continuation -- with something better -- when we get done."

"Hopefully, by the end of the summer, we'll be back and have another party."

Remapping

to compare actual elevations in the area.

The couple did both -- and considerable time and expense later, they finally satisfied the board their proposed home would not float away in a flood.

Development questions

Adding to the general uncertainty created by the incomplete maps is the question, raised two years ago, of whether the Sunday River's floodplain may have changed in recent years.

Newry officials wondered in 1996 if continued development at Sunday River Ski Resort, extra snow on its mountains from snowmaking, and clearcutting elsewhere in the valley might increase potential flood elevations -- and add another variable in planning homes nearby. So the town requested a remapping study.

The request stayed on a waiting list for two years. Then, in late March, word came that the project had been approved, and may start this year. This time, the work will bring the engineers out of their offices to measure elevations near the river.

What prompted FEMA to give Newry the nod over other communities that may also have inaccurate floodplain maps?

The pressure from the town was part of it, according to Lou Sidell, Maine's state floodplain management coordinator. And, he said, "When you have development pressure, towns need better tools to administer (floodplain ordinances)."

The overall remapping process usually takes a little less than two years, according to Sidell.

Water runoff issues

The mapping project may not, however, thoroughly answer the town's concerns regarding development and snowmaking. Stewart said measuring those impacts would likely require a research study of greater scope than the remapping project. It's questionable whether funding is available for that sort of work, he said.

Speaking generally on those issues, Stewart said development can cause water to run off into streams and rivers at a faster rate -- potentially increasing the likelihood and/or elevation of a damaging flood.

For example, he said, water generally runs off open areas, such as golf courses, ski trails and parking lots, more quickly than it does wooded areas. "Any time you knock down trees, it usually speeds up the rate (of runoff)," said Stewart.

But, he added, leveling the slope of the terrain under development can counter that effect -- or even slow down the runoff rate to less than what it had been naturally.

Regarding the effect of manmade snow, Stewart said, "You're putting more snow on the mountain. That has an effect. What that is, it's hard to say."

The added snow would, at least, increase the annual total runoff, he said. Whether it increases the rate of runoff is uncertain.

Skiway's view

Sunday River Ski Resort has said it welcomes any research on the floodplain issue.

Skiway officials say they are confident any further research would confirm what they have believed all along -- that the effect of runoff from developed areas of the resort and from the man-made component of the snowpack is minimal to non-existent.

The Sunday River's total watershed comprises 32,896 acres, of which less than 2.5 percent has been developed by the skiway, according to spokesman Skip King. Ski terrain (excluding glades) makes up 1.76 percent, and other cleared non-ski terrain makes up the remaining .72 percent.

As to the added impact of melting man-made snow on flood levels, he said, a number of studies in Northern New England areas similar to Sunday River show that what little effect it might have is insignificant in the context of the total volume of water flowing through a watershed.

King cited a 1976 study by the U.S. Forest Service that concluded the waterflow additions from snowmaking melt-off "are quickly masked when compared with precipitation for the entire watershed."

Similar conclusions have also been reached, King said, by environmental analyses conducted in support of applications for increased snowmaking at other resorts now owned by the American Skiing Company.

Those studies also found that melted man-made snow would have little, if any, impact on peak spring runoff.

(Note: Sunday River has provided The Citizen with copies of the reports cited by King.)

Bethel House

There was a very large attendance at the Bethel Alliance Church on Easter Sunday. As always, the Rev. Mowery delivered a very nice message. It was entitled, "The Resurrection and the Life." Among the hymns were "Christ Arose" and "Because He Lives."

Irene Russell and Margaret Quinlan went to Cumberland Center on Easter morning and picked up Irene's daughter, Judy Gagnon, and her husband Bruce and their daughter Nicole and they all went to Yarmouth where they had dinner at Far East. Irene and Margaret had attended services at the Rumford Point Church, where the Rev. Deborah Jenks delivered a very nice message, before going to Cumberland Center.

Sonny and Nancy Cummings had dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Buker, Darcie and Darren, on Easter Sunday.

Vada Glover visited Ruth Cummings on Easter Sunday and they enjoyed a very nice dinner at the Rebel Family Restaurant in West Bethel.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cole and twin daughters, Emma and Megan, of Windham were in town visiting relatives on Easter Sunday.

Rebecca Ricker spent Easter with Mildred Newell.

David Wheeler and Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Webster had Easter dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Drew Webster. Barbara Gallant brought Ruth Cummings parsnips last week and visited a while with her.

"The best way to be successful is to follow the advice you give others."

"Take care of your character and your reputation will take care of itself."

Lottie Knowles recently spent a few days with her sister, Eva Lane, at the Bethel House.

"We may write our names in albums, we may print them in the sand, we may carve them here in marble with a firm and steady hand. There is a place above all others we should write it here with care. And that place is in God's book. May your name be written there."

West Bethel

by Karen Jordan

My young son, Stephen, has a terrible head cold with the aches and congestion which go along with it. As I feed and doctor him, I think of the remedies and concoctions my own mother gave us when we were kids. Of course, kids today don't have as many childhood illnesses as we did because of vaccines. We all remember measles, mumps and chicken pox as well as the colds and varieties of flu which today's kids get. My mother's generation dealt with many more including whooping cough, tuberculosis, and polio to name a few.

Mother seemed to know all the right things to do to ease the discomfort of sickness. She would put a pan of water on the wood stove to keep the air moist in the house and swaddle me in blankets and pillows of every shape and size. I could drink carbonated beverages which were sacred and normally reserved for Sunday night with popcorn and Walt Disney. Hot, black tea (adult drink) and toast with butter would often do the trick when nothing else would stay down. I even got to eat on the couch in the living room, which was, again, only allowed Sunday night. I remember how good it made me feel to have something on which belonged to my dad, usually a flannel shirt or his great, huge, wool socks.

Medicinal remedies were paramount in getting well and feeling better. Mom always applied Vicks Vapor Rub to my neck and upper chest and wrapped her softest, most worn-out towel over the area. The smell which came out of that little blue bottle will always invoke memories of mother. This ritual happened at bedtime and was a welcome end to the day. Sometimes when I had slept during the day and thrown off the usual schedule, my parents would let me stay up late enough to watch "Bonanza" and catch up on what Hoss and Little Joe were doing.

Mom always had medicine in the cabinet to keep us doctored. We had black salve which was important for cuts and sores. I still keep this product around, as it is good for infections and applied warm and covered will help pull slivers and dirt out of a wound. Epsom salts in hot water was a favorite for soaking that little hole in the foot, and we kids seemed to often have some kind of barefoot experience which warranted this treatment. My favorite medicine was not to be applied but was swallowed as a preventative measure. I will admit that I loved these little orbs so much that I would literally put life and limb in peril (not to mention my reputation) to get these gelatinous fish eggs into my mouth.

The pills were kept high above the Kelvinator refrigerator and I knew how to climb up the draw pulls in the kitchen at an early age. After I reached the counter top, sometimes having ripped my dress on the tiny nails holding the metal strip-edge, I would carefully step upon the colorfully spotted countertop. Now, I was in a very delicate position if someone were to enter the room. It was still a big reach for a little girl to get by the corner of the fridge and open the upper cabinet where the vitamins were stored. Of course mother had placed them on the very top shelf where they would be hidden from small children. There were other good looking things up there, such as bars of medicinal chocolate, but I had heard my dad tell a woeful tale about eating his father's hidden stash. I only nibbled on the chocolate a few times because I preferred the shiny round cod liver oil capsules which were kept in a brown bottle on that shelf. My mother knew I was keen on popping these pills and never scolded me that I remember. She did, however, hate it when I'd sneak a bite of the margarine stick and put it back in the wrapper leaving telltale tooth marks and swearing it wasn't me.

Alder River Grange will have a meeting on April 24 at the Hall at 7:30 p.m.

Maine passed a bill to reduce property taxes. Everyone should have gotten a letter and a form in the mail last week. If you did not get this in the mail, pick up one at the Town Office. These forms must be turned in to the town office by May 15.

The MDOT will have a public meeting about the PNGTS pipeline right of way on May 5 at Telstar High School starting at 6:30 p.m. There will be announcements in the Sun/Journal and the Citizen about this.

Wally Hannagan is a new grandmother. She has a grandson born on April 14.

Polly Smith enjoyed a cookout at Gary Smith and Wanda Howard's in Rumford on April 18.

Carolyn Grant of Winterport visited Leslie Noyes and Nina Mollicone from April 17 to 20.

Rodney Howe is doing fine now. His treatments are finished.

Bob Hinkley worked for a couple hours last week. He is doing well with his new leg.

Arlene Harrington will celebrate a birthday on May 3.

Lisa Haines and Jill Olson are home from U.M.F. through April 26.

Laurie Crockett returned on April 19 from a week in Laconia, N.H., where she visited Mr. and Mrs. Ben Bolon and children.

Peter and Chad Bean, Mary Bean, and Arthur Hertel went to a Portland Sea Dogs game in Portland on April 19. The Sea Dogs lost the game.

The Birthday Supper will be held on Saturday, April 25, with sittings at 5 p.m. and 6 p.m.

A traditional ham dinner will be served with birthday cakes for dessert. The First Congregational Church moved the annual dinner to the spring from the usual fall date.

All are invited to help with the Work Day at the town ball field scheduled for Saturday, April 25, beginning at 9 a.m.

The Public Library will host Amnesty Week April 26 through May 2. Overdue books, magazines and tapes may be returned with no fines collected. This is a good time to search the bookcase for any overlooked library books. The Pre-K Story and Craft Time will be held on Thursday, April 23, beginning at 2:30 p.m. The Teens Group will meet again on April 30 at 6:15 p.m. for a viewing of "Titanic," the classic movie.

A March of Dimes Walk-a-Thon will be held on Sunday, April 26. If you are interested in participating or have questions, please contact Kelly Scotti at 392-1681.

The Kaleidoscope group will have a special guest joining them on Wednesday, April 29. Wendy Green will share her singing and musical talents with the children. The group meets at the CEB from 2:30 to 3:30 weekly. New youngsters are always welcome to attend.

Have you discovered any unused treasures while spring cleaning? The First Congregational Church would appreciate any donations to their "The Blessing and the Bane" sale to be held in August. Contact Dinah Cutting at 392-4491, or Eda Perkins at 392-4401 to arrange for a drop-off.

Congratulations to Terry Alexandra, who was last week's winner of the free dinner at the All Season's Cafe. Diners may enter their name for the weekly raffle drawing.

I was a guest at the wedding of Jennifer Dube and Billy Murphy in Milan, N.H., last weekend. The wedding and reception were very nice, a good time was had by all.

I am very pleased that someone interested in assuming the correspondent duties has come forward. I am quite confident that she will be submitting next week's column and will be anxious to note any news in the paper for you. I am thankful to all of you that have expressed your interest in the column, and your concern that I am resigning from the paper. Thanks to all that called or sent notes of news over the years. I really enjoyed getting the information in the paper for all to share. Thanks for all the years of reading. Sincerely, Karen J. McKay.

(And thank you, Karen, for a great job.)

Sunday River Valley

by Rockie Graham

Unfortunately, I must say that this is more like the spring that I remember. Brrrrr! I didn't expect it to stay so cold. I was expecting warm sun for the afternoon. There sits my laundry waiting for the sun to dry it.

I toured the valley this weekend. It is amazing how little snow there is. Only a few stray patches in odd places remain. Seems awfully early for that, but we didn't have much natural snow. The rain last night helped the rivers, but not enough to make up for the lack of snow. We'll have to be careful not to set any fires in the forest if we go camping.

I don't know about anyone else, but I took advantage of the Open House at the Ranger Station and got a tour of the trails and the wetlands. Thanks, Missy.

The Newry Post Office Open House went well. I was worried when I arrived and no one else was there, but it didn't take long for folks to show up. Present were: Rudy and JoAnn Royer, Pat Morez, Claire Bonica, Rowena and Herbert Dunham, Bruce Pierce, Jean and Lucien Couture, Richard and Holly Arey, Kjersten Lester-Mpratzka and Greg Lester, Kathy Trefethan, Jeanine and Gary Wing, Jessica Perry, Karlene Bachelder, Gil Seeley, Billie Child, Beth and Charles Bean, Nancy Tapley, Jean Swasey, Dorothy and Richard Moore, Marci Baker, Hugh Lynole, Al and Brent Lake, Cindy Cox and Robert and Donna Curtis. Postmistress Crystal Lake and Postmaster-relief Leslie Aron were present. There were tours and great refreshments available. The door prize was won by Cindy Cox. If I spelled your name wrong, I apologize, I was working from a written list, for the people I didn't see.

Got to view the new calves while en route to Linda and Brad Harrington's to buy eggs. They are so tiny, it's hard to believe they grow up to be those big critters that summer behind my house.

JOBS CREDIT UPDATE

Thanks to the new tax law and the extension of existing tax breaks, it is still possible to combine your feelings of social responsibility with tax savings. Two tax credits designed to encourage hiring the underprivileged provide benefits for businesses that employ welfare recipients and other targeted groups.

The Welfare-to-Work Credit allows for up to $8,500 in tax credits for each new employee who was formerly a recipient of "welfare" (technically, the government's long-term family assistance program). The credit is available for wages paid to a qualified individual who begins work on or after January 1, 1998. The credit is computed as 35% on up to $10,000 of first year "qualified" wages, and 50% on up to $10,000 of second-year "qualified" wages.

The Work Opportunity Tax Credit which was due to expire September 30, 1997, has been extended through June 30, 1998. This credit provides tax savings of up to $2,400 per qualified employee, and is generally computed as 40% of up to $6,000 of first-year wages per worker. The term "qualified recipient" encompasses more than just the welfare recipient included under the Welfare-to-Work Credit; the "targeted groups" for this credit include ex-felons, high-risk youth, qualified veterans, vocational rehabilitation referrals, qualified summer youth employees, and qualified supplemental social security income recipients.

As usual, there are extensive requirements for claiming these tax credits, including a minimum number of hours worked and state certification requirements. Contact our office if you would like all the details.

Tent 17 Daughters of Union
Veterans of the Civil War met on Monday, April

13, for a regular meeting with 15 present. Jennifer Stevens was installed as senior vice president by Past President Elsie Brooks. A report was given on the senior citizens' dinner. Helvi Cary told of the Memorial Day plans. The new constitutions have arrived. Fifty-five calls were reported. We made a recommendation to send to the department. The Daughters will hold a Yard, Flea Market, Whatever Sale on Saturday, May 16; from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Grange Hall; anyone wishing a table to sell their own things may call 665-2460, 665-2171 or 665-2470. Tables are $3. Lunch will be served at noon with coffee in the morning. A silent auction will be held at the May 11 meeting. Debbie Millett and Harriett Estes are on refreshment committee. Alice Hoyt received the mystery package.

On April 29, Wednesday, at 7 p.m., at the Woodstock Elementary School, a 28-voice choir from New Brunswick Bible Institute will present a fresh and vibrant Gospel message in the traditional spirit. A ladies' trio and men's quartet as well as the choir will present a program that will minister to your heart and bless all those who attend. Traveling with them is Mr. Glen Wiggins, music director, and faithfully member Mr. Keith McMahon who will bring a brief message from the Word of God. Everyone is welcome to attend.

Remember the Walk-a-thon for the Whitman Memorial Library on May 9 at 9 a.m. Please either walk or support a walker. Matching funds need to be raised soon for funds from Stephen King to build the new library addition.

Joining Barbara Hathaway for Easter dinner at her home on Rumford Avenue were Mike and Penny Hathaway, Madison, N.H.; Marc and Brenda LaForce, Rollingsford, N.H.; Brian Hathaway, Dover, N.H.; Bruce and Susan Glines, West Paris; Brian and Linda Stowell, Sara and Rachel, West Bethel; Elsie Bennett, South Paris; Carmen Nadeau, Lewiston; Jason Bennett, Northfield, Vt., is a guest of Barbara Hathaway.

Beatrice Farnum, Alice and Ken Hoyt, Jim Hoyt, Joseph and Maggie, JoAnn, David, Ray and Shawn Crockett, Steve and Marybeth Hoover joined Leatrice and John Chase, Helen Chase, Robert, Althea, Keith, Jenny and Danny Stevens, Andrew, Rhonda and Liza Chase and Cal. It was a lovely day so we had our Easter dinner outdoors; the sun was real warm.

Edith Hathaway and Burton Hathaway were Easter dinner guests of her daughter and family Mr. and Mrs. Reynold Jordan, Waterford.

Edith Hathaway has visited Alice Wardwell several times at the Rumford Community home where she is presently a patient.

Beatrice Farnum and Alice Hoyt called on Alice Wardwell one day this week.

Greenwood City

by Colista Morgan

We have had several days of spring that came and went and they were welcome. All nature rejoiced, for at six in the morning I heard the call of the robin. 'Tis then I fling all winter away and let my heart with every robin sing. The squawk of the grackle and the conk-err-ee of the red wing near the pond will join them soon.

I lifted my head from my pillow to look toward the mountains. It was clear and beautiful and the breeze through the window soft and fresh.

Before "summer" was over the swallows arrived and it seemed so natural to see them fighting over the bird houses. The sun began to touch the mountain across the valley and I knew the slumbering seeds were throwing aside their winter shrouds. Across all the land colorful pageantry of another spring was moving on wings of song.

Motionless clouds reflected their presence, while over all was the pink of the morning. I always look to note any change.

A flock of geese flew over and honked a salute from the blue, high up.

My crocuses are so pretty and best described by Frank Fletcher from the poem, "First Crocuses." "They are as earth's first rainbow/Fair promise of new life they bring/These sturdy heralds of young spring."

Easter day was a day of family gatherings for many families. All but one was at the farm for dinner and the afternoon, a beautiful day.

Robert was with us and he was doing well from his shoulder surgery. Ann was on crutches but she, too, was gaining from surgery on her knee.

Zilpha DiArenzo has returned to her home here for the summer. Welcome home, Zilpha.

I had a bouquet of tulips for Easter. They are beautiful.

News from School Administrative District #44: Andover • Bethel • Greenwood • Newry • Woodstock

To the Voters of M.S.A.D. #44

After considerable deliberation, the M.S.A.D.#44 Board of Directors is pleased to bring this budget of $7,245,273 to you. It represents an increase in expenditures of 3.25%, but with an average increase in assessment of only 2.96%. The past three budgets have had no increase but the Board is simply unable to continue doing this.

This budget continues recent initiatives in testing, curriculum development, teacher training, teacher evaluation, multi-age instruction, and implementation of the State mandated Learning Results. In addition, the Board has included funds within this budget to: separately transport grades K-5 students and grades 6-12 students; implement field trips; equalize late bus services; initiate an "in-school" suspension program at Telstar Middle School; improve technology; and reinstate art and instrumental music. The Board recognizes taxpayer concerns and kept them in mind as this budget was formulated. The Board believes this budget is a reasonable balance between taxpayer concerns and the need to continue improving our students' educational programs.

The public hearing on this budget will be Wednesday, April 29, 1998, at 7 p.m. in the Tester High School Library. This referendum vote will be on Tuesday, May 12, 1998.

Respectfully Submitted,

Kent E. Rosberg
Superintendent of Schools

Budget Explanation

Category	Function	Description	FY 98 Budget	FY 99 Proposed	FY98/FY99 % Incr(Decr)
Guidance	212	This includes all guidance costs for district schools. The increase is primarily due to continuing the newly instituted testing program.	187,652	196,530	4.73%
Health	213	District nursing services and related items are included in this amount.	38,703	38,368	-0.87%
Educational Development	221	This money is for staff training. The increase is a result of State mandated Learning Results' implementation training.	41,300	47,200	14.29%
Library & AV	222&223	This is for all the library and audio-visual services in the district.	125,747	126,337	0.47%
School Board	231	Included in this figure are funds for technology, contingency, and the impact of collective bargaining settlements. Once settlements are obtained, these costs will be distributed to the appropriate function.	44,925	205,525	357.48%
Central Office	232	This is to fund the district's central office. Legal costs have increased.	261,449	263,118	0.64%
Administration	241	Funds in this account are for the school offices in all the schools. This includes salaries for principals, secretaries, phones, postage, course reimbursement, and office supplies.	499,533	499,408	-0.03%
Buildings, Grounds, & Maintenance	262&263	Building maintenance costs are in this account. Included in this account are the items from the Board's Long Range Capital Improvements Plan. Some of these items include paving at Andover and Telstar, major roof repairs at Telstar, and video cameras for school buses. The salaries and benefits for custodial staff are in this account. Grounds maintenance costs are also included here.	834,602	950,297	13.86%
Transportation	272 & 273	Transportation related costs including salaries, benefits, fuel, bus repairs, separate K-5 and 6-12 bus runs, field trips, and late bus runs are located here.	630,143	639,317	1.46%
Recertification	281	The funds to operate the State mandated teacher re-certification program are in this account. It is reduced from last year because the every tenth year re-accrual cost for the high school has been removed.	10,772	1,800	-83.29%
Debt Service	510	The principal and interest payments for Crescent Park School are in this account.	440,411	429,025	-2.59%

Weather gives softballers a kick

By ALISON ALOISIO

The Telstar High School girls' softball team has a huge advantage this season.

It's the spring weather.

"It's been a boon for us to have the field dry," says coach Jim Lunney. In other years, the Rebels have typically been one of the last Mountain Valley Conference teams to get off the parking lots and onto a real ballfield.

"It's usually been our first scrimmage before we would get on the field," said Lunney.

But this season, the team had two weeks of practice taking ground balls off the real infield dirt, and making throws the correct distances to the bases.

Of course, the fact that the team has some talented players will also help.

"It's a veteran team, with nine let-terms," said Lunney. "A lot of them were in the playoffs last year."

And the playoffs are again the goal this year, with the added hope of hosting a playoff game -- which requires a finish in the top four.

The lineup: seniors Dani Littlehale (starting shortstop, pitcher), Hana Seames (starting catcher), Kim Baker (starting center fielder), Bekah Howe (starting second baseman); juniors Stacy Bachelder (starting outfielder), Christy Richardson (starting third baseman), Toni Vacca (starting first baseman), Brandy Poland (catcher), Heather Borst (third base), Casey Brown (outfield), Jamie Johnson (second base); and sophomore Jen Walker (pitcher, shortstop).

Walker is the team's #1 pitcher. Put her in with Vacca (the best first baseman in the league, according to Lunney), Littlehale, Howe and Richardson, and defense becomes the team's strength, said Lunney.

And on offense, he said, "we'll do fine." Vacca is also the leading hitter, with Walker doing well as leadoff hitter. Bachelder is also hitting the ball hard early.

"I'm very pleased with our progress. We should be in the playoff hunt," said Lunney.

The hunt will likely be with Carabec and Madison, the defending MVC champion, as well as Hall-Dale, Lisbon, Dirigo and Georges Valley.

"There's five or six teams that can go out on any given day and beat anybody," Lunney said.

The Rebels open the regular season tomorrow (Friday) in Madison. With the defending champs up first, one thing is for sure, said Lunney, "We'll find out how we're doing right away."

Girl tracksters outnumber the boys

By ALISON ALOISIO

The Telstar High School girls' track team has the biggest squad in years -- 27.

It's too bad they can't lend a few to the seven-man boys' team.

Not since the mid-1980s has coach John Applin fielded a girls' team of that size. The numbers also come with a good measure of talent, some of which came as a surprise discovery to Applin at the first meet of the year last week.

Freshman Hilary McCloy, for instance, put up a time in the 200-meter sprint at Hebron Academy that qualified her for regional competition at the end of the season.

It was the first time she had run a 200-meter race.

There was also sophomore Abbie Beane. Her first year out in track, she stepped up to run in the 400-meter race, also for the first time.

She, too, qualified for regional competition.

Two other newcomers, freshman Stephanie Vaughan and sophomore Becky LaVallee, also turned in excellent performances, with Vaughan winning the triple jump and LaVallee the shot put and discus.

Add them all to a mix of veterans, several of whom also qualified for regional competition last year, and Applin sees a team that should be competitive against other Class C teams.

The tracksters, and their events, include: seniors Michelle McInnis (long and triple jumps), Tabatha Mason (shot put, discus, javelin), Martha Grover (javelin, discus), Bene Fanard (javelin); juniors Heather Best (3,200, 1,600, 800 meters), Malinda Gilbert (sprints, pole vault), Emily Phillips (high jump, sprints); sophomores Beane (400 meters, long and triple jumps), LaVallee (shot put, discus), Jen Howe (3,200, 1,600, 800 meters), Jen Mason (sprints, long jump), Lacy Phillips (javelin), Jen Shaw (100- and 300-meter hurdles), Jessica Walker (100- and 300-meter hurdles), Gail Aloisio (sprints, pole vault); freshmen McCloy (sprints, pole vault, triple jump), Vaughan (triple and high jumps, pole vault), Hope Arbano (middle distance running), Connie Burgess (shot put), Stephanie Gavett (javelin), Emily Gilbert (pole vault), Danyel Hale (1,600-meter race walking, distance running), Alishia Miclon (1,600-meter race walking), Lindsey Moody (shot put), Jen Morin (middle distance running), Marianne Nadeau (middle-distance running), Kate O'Rourke (discus).

The team was nipped by Hebron in last week's meet, 61-59. But, said Applin, that was without big point-scorer Best, and several other team members who are nursing minor injuries.

"Once we're healthy -- and all there -- we'll do fairly well," he said.

Boys

The boys' team lost many members to graduation last year. And with this year's small numbers, the tracksters will have to focus on individual, rather than team, goals.

Sophomore high jumper Jon Shaw reached one goal early. Like McCloy and Beane, he qualified for regional competition in the Hebron meet.

Shaw's teammates include seniors Dana Howe (3,200 and 1,600 meters), Mike Lane (shot put); juniors Brett Wilson (3,200 and 1,600 meters) and Chris Vaughan (1,600 meters, discus); sophomore Chris Marcum (javelin, 400 meters); and freshman Steve LaVallee (long and triple jumps).

Howe, Wilson and Marcum, said Applin, have the potential to qualify for regionals in the 3,200, 1,600 and javelin, respectively.

This week at the

Moses Mason House

For those interested in western Maine history, two people may be of interest. One was Luther Whiting Mason (1818-1896), an important music educator, whose career as an instructor and textbook editor spanned much of the 19th century and several continents. Born in Turner, he taught in Delaware and Maryland and directed music programs in Louisville and Cincinnati. He taught music in Boston, supervised classroom teachers and established teacher training programs. In Boston and Philadelphia he came in contact with Japanese students. Later he spent considerable time abroad, particularly in Japan developing Japanese music textbooks. He died in Buckfield, and is buried in the North Buckfield Cemetery. The Bethel Historical Society has recently received a biography, "Luther Whiting Mason: International Music Educator" by Sondra Wieland Howe and published in 1997 by Harmonie Park Press, Warren, Mich.

Dr. Frank E. Barton was born in Bethel in 1898, the son of the Universalist minister. He graduated from Gloucester, Mass., High School and received his undergraduate education at the University of Maine. He received his medical education at Boston University and became a nationally-known surgeon and member of the medical faculty at Boston University. At one time he also served as a trustee of Boston University and president of its Alumni Association. In the latter capacity he headed the drive to raise $60,000,000 for the university. He died in 1961 at the age of 63.

From the

Jackson-Silver Aux.

When the Auxiliary of Jackson-Silver American Legion Post met on April 16 several items of business were accomplished. Several future events were planned and officers were elected.

Officers for the 1998-1999 year will be Florence "Honey" Bailey, president; Ada Cummings, first vice president; Leah Deegan, second vice president; Olive Risko, secretary; and Evanna Davis, sgt. at arms. Serving on the executive committee will be Sylvia Dunham, Mary Lyon and Fern Merrill. Delegates to the State Convention at Bangor in June will be Evanna Davis, Olive Risko, Vera Cross and Sylvia Dunham. Martha Stowell will be an alternate; other alternates have not yet been chosen. Jeri Greenwell, a past department president, will be a delegate-at-large. The joint installation of Post and Unit will be at 7 p.m. on May 21.

Sylvia Dunham and Deirdre Cameron will serve on a scholarship committee with the Post to select the winners to be awarded in June. Michelle Reynolds was received as a new member. She is the daughter of member Fern Merrill and the late Earl Merrill, longtime Post member.

It was reported that the supper dance on April 14 was a success and it is hoped that the one on April 28 will be even more so. That one is being put on with the help of Franklin Grange of Bryant Pond and the Friends of the Library to benefit the expansion fund of Whitman Memorial Library.

Other planning was done for upcoming meals to be served, including ones for a group of MDO employees, the Woodstock High School Alumni Banquet on June 13, a wedding rehearsal dinner in July. These are in addition to the monthly supper dances which will be held through October. Next meeting is May 7 at 7 p.m.

From the

Oxford Pomona Grange 2

The April meeting of Oxford Pomona Grange was held at Franklin Grange in Bryant Pond following the usual supper. There were 40 in attendance, including these state officers: Dot Brown, lecturer; Russell Brown of the Executive Committee; Harold Parsons, assistant steward; and Mildred Parsons, lady assistant steward. Also recognized were Connie Tutlis, director of the State Deaf Awareness Committee, and Stan Howe of the Legislative Committee.

Franklin Grange barely edged out Rumford Grange for the attendance banner, which is given each month to the Grange with the highest percentage of Pomona members present.

The week of April 19-25 being Grange Week, Lecturer Stan Howe planned his program around Grange history. After the signing of "It's a Good Thing to be a Granger," a tableau was presented with Connie Tutlis, Hazel Conant, Richard Felt, Althea Fish, Francis Conant and Gail Butterfield taking part.

A quiz about the Grange was next and included questions about the eighth founder of the order who was voted in 1916, the 13 states that do not have granges; the names of the current national master, Kermit Richardson, and the state he represents, Vermont. Members were asked to relate stories of something that happened at a Grange meeting and some funny ones were told.

Francis Edwards, Peggy Blake and Nina Grover were winners of the mystery march and Priscilla Jasud won the 50/50 drawing.

According to the lecturer, there is much effort going into changing the image and appeal of the Grange so that it can continue and attract more new members.

At one time young people looked forward to becoming 14 years old so they could join the Grange. One especially useful program is that of Deaf Awareness. The deaf make up the largest group of disabled people in the world and the Grange is trying to do something about this.

Next meeting is May 5 at Bear Mountain Grange in South Waterford after a 6:30 supper. A Community Service award will be given to a deserving person.

From the Middle Intervale Meeting House Soc.

The interim president and the Board of Directors of the Middle Intervale Meetinghouse Society have called a special meeting of the society for Saturday, May 2, at 9:30 a.m. at the Meetinghouse. The purpose of the meeting is to discuss concern for the ongoing preservation of the Meetinghouse Society, and to present a proposal that will allow the society to pursue its goals.

The Board of Directors asks the membership to make every effort to attend this meeting.

MENS GATHERING COMING

Western Mountain Men is in the final planning stages of its fourth weekend gathering for men of all ages, beliefs and persuasions. The biannual event will take place from May 1 to May 3. Men from all walks of life are encouraged to attend and find out what it's like to experience a completely different way of relating to and finding the true essence of manhood. It is a wonderful and fulfilling experience for both newcomers and the repeat attendees.

The weekend begins with dinner and introductions on Friday night. On Saturday, there are ample opportunities to participate in workshops, to enjoy the exceptional environs of the Maine Conservation School in Bryant Pond, and to develop new friendships. On Saturday night there's a talent show (with no guarantee of "talent"). The event ends mid-afternoon on Sunday.

For more information and a free brochure, interested men are urged to act right away, since May 1 is nearly here. Write Western Mountain Men, PO Box 269, Farmington, ME 04938, or call Danny at 778-0609 (Farmington), Rene at 495-2174 (Belgrade), Bill at 225-3068 (Turner) or Edward at 490-0390 (Winslow).

GREENWOOD BRUSH REMOVAL

Brush removal from the roads and streets in Greenwood will be conducted the week starting May 4 thru May 8. Any property owner must put their brush they want picked up beside the road before then. The town will not be responsible for Routes 219, and 26 or the East Bethel Road. Only brush and trees will be picked up. (No plywood, leaves, furniture or any other material). Residents are encouraged to stack brush neatly with the butt end toward the road and avoid placement under all wires or trees whenever possible.

TOWN OF WOODSTOCK

Anyone interested in helping with the storm damage brush clean up should contact the Woodstock Town Office. This will include a lot of handwork, cutting of hazardous trees and limbs as well as machine work within the town road right of ways. The clean up process is underway and we are in need of help. If you are interested in hauling the brush with your own equipment we will need proof of insurance.

The work has to be completed before July 13, 1998.
Please contact the Woodstock Town Office at 665-2668 for further information.

We will be collecting brush from the roadsides only. If you have brush from your front yard, pile it neatly beside the road and as far away from electricity lines as possible. ONLY brush will be picked up. No wood, broken poles, furniture or any other material will be collected. We will not be cleaning up on Route 26 and 232.

Thinking or Selling? This is what some of our previous clients have to say about Mahoosuc Realty...

- "Informed us when it was shown and buyer response/opinion."

- "Arranged the closing for me - Thanks! Everything went very smoothly."

- "Sold my home - Really I was very happy with the service, notification of showings were given appropriately and if I was ever in the market to have a broker find a home for me or if I had another property to sell in the Western Maine Area, I wouldn't hesitate to use the folks at Mahoosuc Realty. Thank you for helping me."

- "Great work in structuring the deal and keeping it together."

- "Made us feel that we were important each and every time we spoke."

- "Thank you for all your hard work!"

- "As you know, we have bought and sold several houses, but this sale was the easiest, and most carefully followed."

- "We were more than pleased with the way it was handled from the original walk through, to the way each showing was handled, to the final sale."

- "Many, many thanks, we are thrilled with the way things went, and feel it is due to the wonderful effort put in to your business!"
